

Pat The Hamburger's Scary Journey Through The Digestive System

by Dedee Hui & Emelie Egnehäll

This girl's name is Jane. She is very hungry. She is going to buy a hamburger and then she is going home with that hamburger.

Pat The Hamburger!

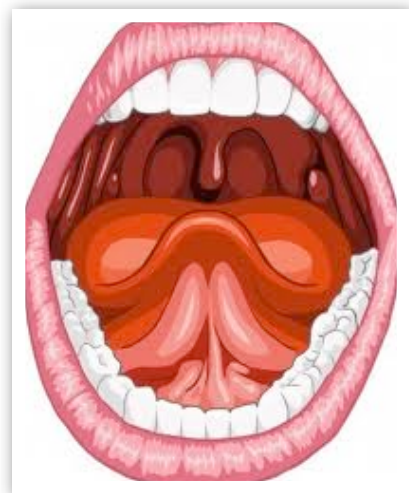

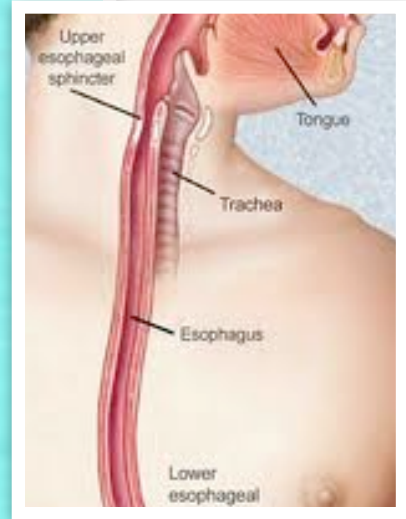

“Hello, my name is Pat and I am a cute hamburger. Today something scary happened to me...”

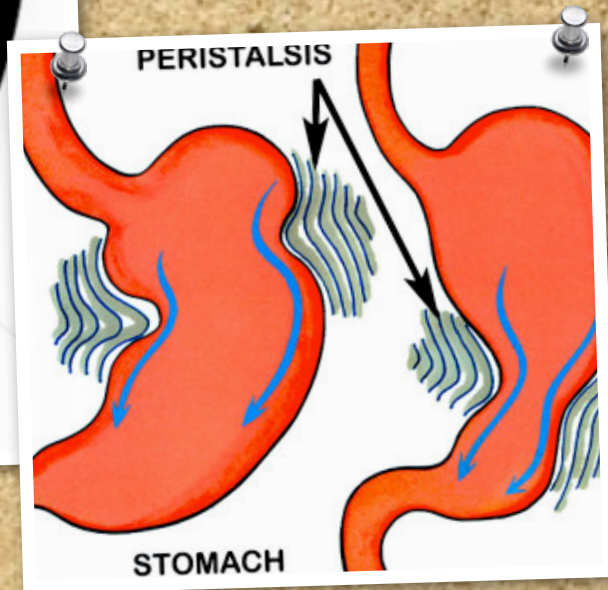

Jane picks Pat up and she starts to put Pat in her mouth. Pat is very scared. He sees Jane's teeth, and red tongue. He feels wet when Jane eats him.

Jane chews and swallows Pat.

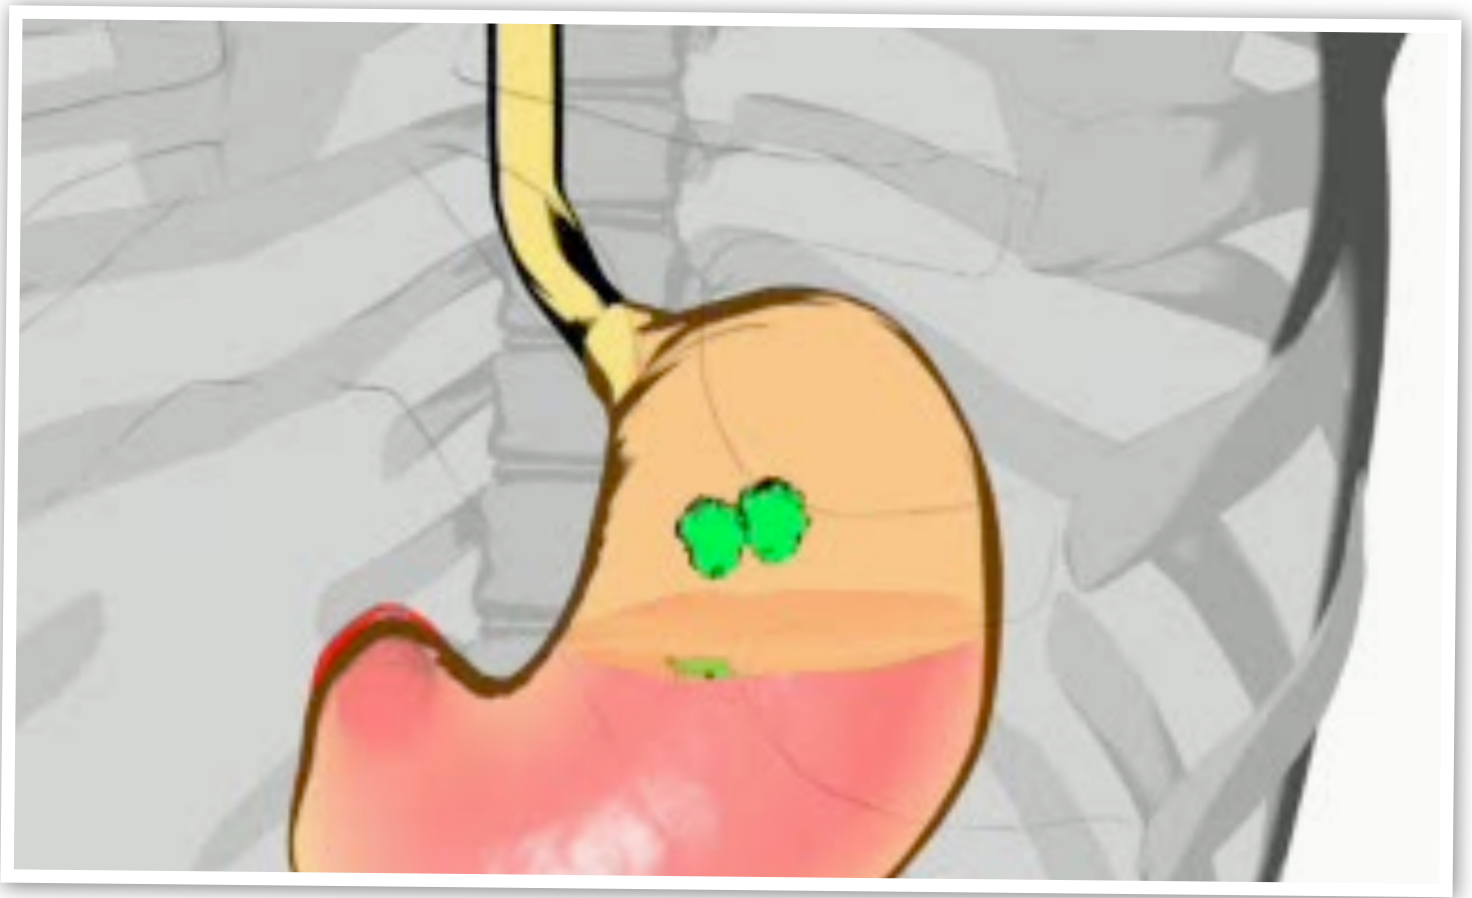

“I see a dark thing,” says Pat. “It is the esophagus. I am in a narrow place and the muscles push me down.”

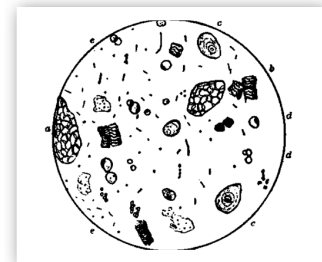

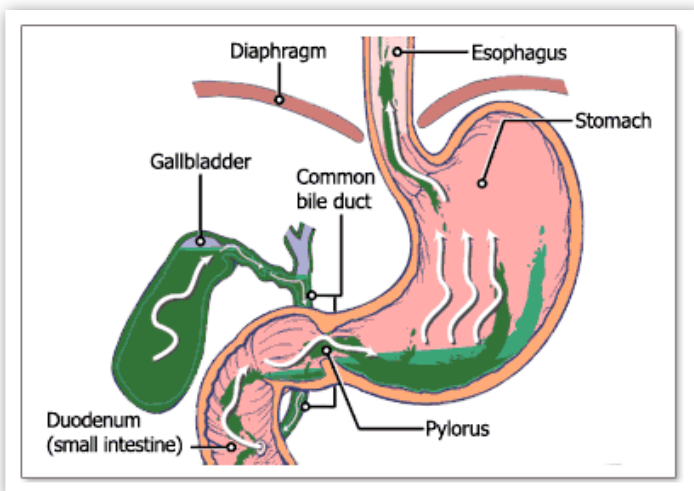

“Now I’m in the stomach. I am swimming in the gastric acid. It is burning me. The stomach is pushing me all the time. I see the liver now. I am going to swim to the liver.”

Bile

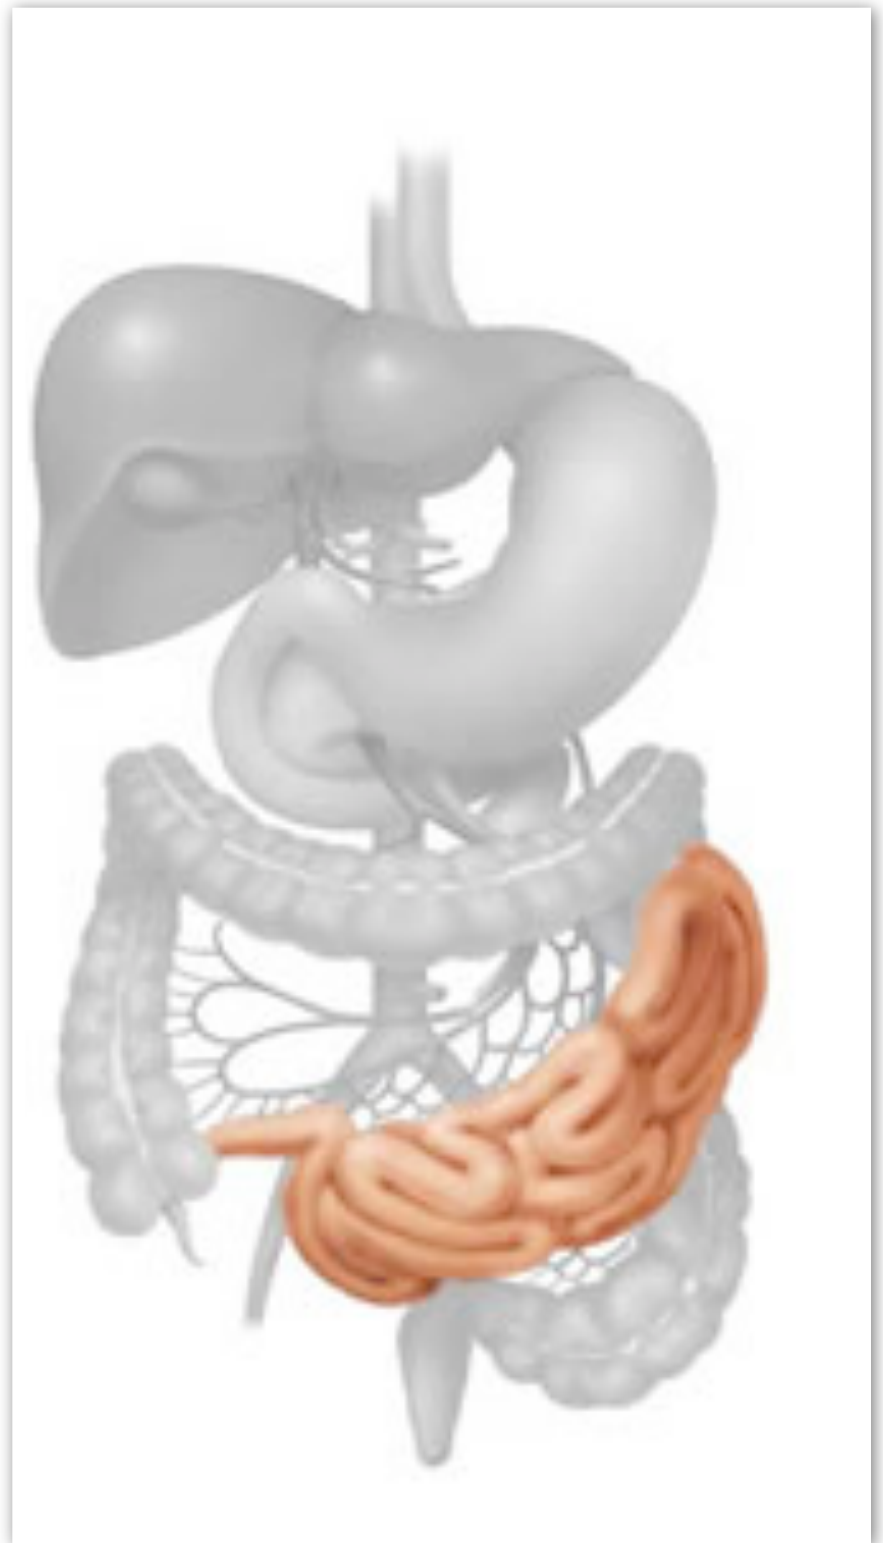

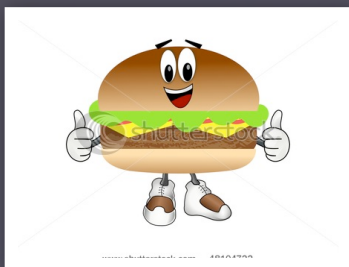

“Oh my gosh! Ewww! The bile from the liver is very smelly and sticky and it burns me. Ouch! It is very hot. It is breaking me into tiny pieces.”

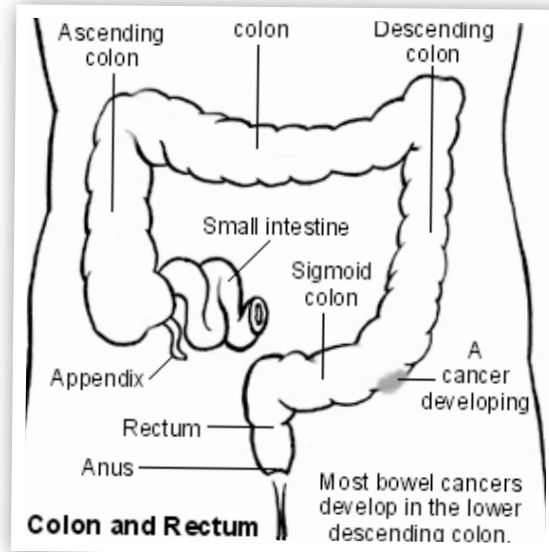

The Small Intestine

"I'm in the small intestine.
It is absorbing
a lot of my body.
Pieces of my body are leaving now!"

The Large Intestine

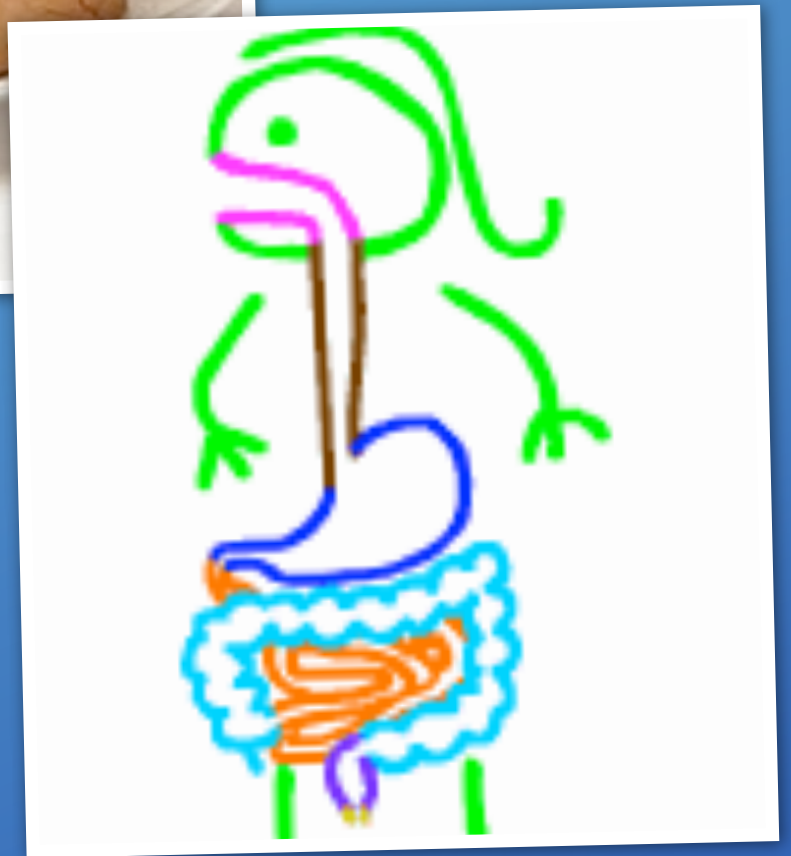

“I’m so sad now. A lot of my body is gone. I’m getting dry and I feel bored. I have been sitting here for 12 hours and I’m thirsty.”

Yay! Finally I am out of here! I have exited the anus and I am free! Free, but WET. Where am I? This place is big and a bit sticky. I don't like it Whoa...(flush!)
